Vodafone dynamics

Aim to support coaching culture across the organization. Increase focus on 'manager as coach' approach

A need for people development to meet future needs and retain top staff

A programme that would 'scale' and not just be for perceived 'top talents'

Continuous and radical changes in the organization

Ambitious, competitive, assertive employees with high expectations

'Speed' a key company value

Our concerns

No time

Difficult to select pool of mentors and mentees

Matching: hard to carry out and justify

Interest and commitment might drop off during the year

Possible resistance to 'HR or top management led programme'

YOU CAN HAVE
RESULTS
- OR -
EXCUSES
NOT BOTH

Our Solution

- Design a programme to meet the specific situation and needs
- It's largely a self-service programme, mentees self-select
- Mentee: chooses, leads, informs
- Mentor: can reject the request, maximum 3 mentees at any time
- Ground rules for programme – mentor must not be in same reporting line (preferably different unit) and confidentiality
- We recommend a one year formal relationship, one meeting per month

Observations

- The programme design has avoided many of the common problems
- Mentees drive the process and do the matching there is no pool
- Little drop off in energy and commitment
- Discussions about mentoring in daily business life
- 'be a mentor/mentee' : in the development plans, spontaneously
- Half day workshops fitted people's programmes better than full day ones
- Programme Manager and External Consultant are available for support and we have been consulted by mentors and mentees during the year

Challenges

- Sponsorship
- Quality of the mentoring?
- Career move target
- Some mentors volunteer but not chosen
- How to choose or approach mentors
- Mentor popularity

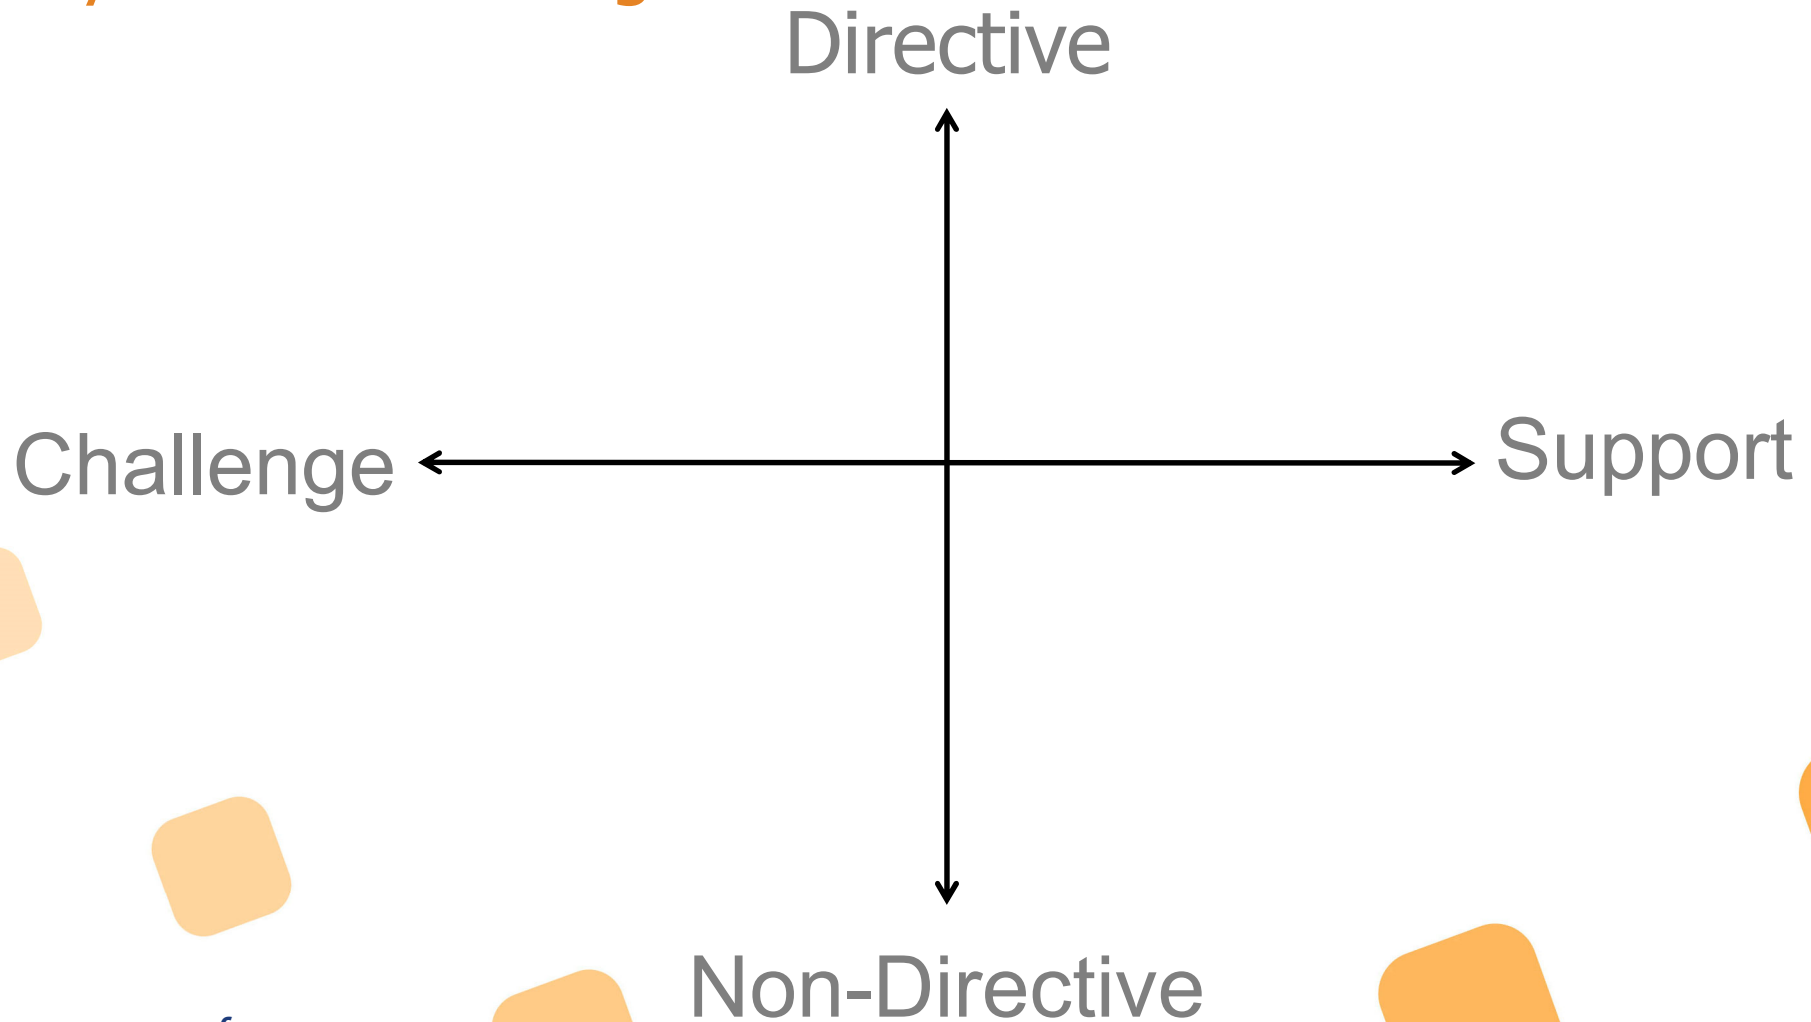

Learnings, what will we do differently?

- Aim to get more time to work with executive committee -> role models and champions for the programme
- More work with HR Business Partners
- More frequent supervision sessions
- Mentee workshop attendance before mentee - mentor matching
- Integration with other HR programmes - Diversity & Inclusion, Discover Young Talents
- In workshops emphasise the value of mentor from different function
